

When New Yorkers
needed it most,

Grace Meng
led the charge to extend unemployment benefits...

She kept families afloat in dire times.

Now Grace Meng is fighting to make Queens a major center for 21st Century businesses and jobs.

As a Member of the State Assembly, Grace Meng was an outspoken advocate to sustain unemployment benefits – authoring the bill to extend lifelines to thousands of New Yorkers who were struggling through the toughest economy in decades.

In Congress, she will fight to provide Queens families not just jobs but real careers by:

- Making Queens a hub for technology firms – which will promote local economic growth.
- Providing job retraining and high-tech education to better prepare families to compete in the 21st century global marketplace.
- Promoting small business tax breaks and better access to credit, so small business owners can grow and create new jobs.
- Providing tax breaks for companies that keep jobs here in America.
